FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Highly Experienced Sports Medicine Specialist, Dale W. Boyd, Jr., MD, Brings 25 Years of Expertise To EmmergeOrtho Team

WILMINGTON, NC, September 23, 2020— On October 1, 2020, Cape Fear Sports Medicine, an orthopedic practice with nearly a quarter of a century of serving Wilmington, will join EmmergeOrtho, one of the largest physician-owned, independent orthopedic practices in North Carolina.

“We are excited about what this new association means for our patients,” said Dale W. Boyd, Jr., MD, founder and president of Cape Fear Sports Medicine. “Both practices have always pledged to maintain the highest standard of patient-focused, quality-driven care. As part of EmmergeOrtho, our patients will simply have increased access to a much larger network of care and services in numerous locations from the coast to the mountains.”

A board-certified orthopedic surgeon and fellowship-trained sports medicine specialist, Dr. Boyd focuses on sports medicine for athletes of all ages and competitive levels. He is highly experienced in treating injuries and conditions of the elbow, knee and lower limb, including knee and shoulder reconstructions and joint preservation through cutting-edge cartilage and ligament procedures. He also has extensive experience caring for preadolescent athletes, from both a surgical and nonsurgical perspective.

A graduate of Drexel University College of Medicine, Dr. Boyd completed his residency at Wayne State University School of Medicine in Detroit, MI, and his fellowship at the University of Kentucky College of Medicine.
